its neither an original nor an especially complex thought, and Comedy Central was hardly the first to posit it. what makes you so sure hes quoting something?

ive said stuff like that many times, and i almost never watch TV.

If that is a guarantee to get your child into heaven (assuming that is how it works) then why not? Sacrificing your afterlife to insure your child's is set in stone.

I was talking to someone about this that thought it a shame the mother and son "didn't go to the same place"

I corrected him because they in fact did...the morgue.

If she had merely killed herself because of religious views, I wouldn't give a damn. But she fucking killed her son in cold blood, without any warning, to send him to an imaginary fairy tale land that doesn't fucking exist.

Yummy.

It's not called the white house anymore.

Blackness is not determined by the colour of your skin, but by the colour of your soul.
